There's a lot riding on your judgment when you prescribe medication for your patients. There's also a lot riding on your judgment when you choose medical malpractice insurance—your financial security and professional reputation, for example.

When you sign up for a professional liability policy from The SCPIE Companies, you're getting the most comprehensive malpractice protection available.

For almost a quarter of a century, SCPIE has been a leading provider of malpractice insurance to the healthcare industry—renowned for offering extremely broad coverage, aggressive claims handling, effective risk management and unsurpassed service.

And even though we're in the business of malpractice insurance, we also provide wonderful intangibles such as security, stability and peace of mind.

With nearly $845 million in assets and $343 million in policyholder surplus (as of December 31, 1998), we're one of America's best-capitalized malpractice insurers.

The pooled "A" ("Excellent") rating we have been awarded by the A.M. Best Company, the nation's most authoritative and respected insurance rating service, is further testament to our financial strength.
